

WILL REPASS PRESENT BIG SUPPLY BILLS

House Leaders Averse to Retracing Steps on Appropriations for Next Session.

If the appropriation bills fall in the present Congress, it is the intention of the members of the appropriating committee of the House to frame no new bills for the extra session. Plans are now under way at the House to re-pass this session's bills at an extra session under a suspension of the rules and without extended debate.

The House leaders are decidedly averse to retracing their steps and doing their work on the appropriation bills all over again. They contend that the House has done its part in pushing through the annual supply bills, and that, good or bad, these bills simply will be re-passed at the extra session—unless the Administration specifically directs changes.

Could Save $50,000,000.

Reports have been current at the Capitol that, if the appropriation bills are to be re-passed, about $50,000,000 will be cut from them because of the growing Treasury deficit. It is learned from members of the House Appropriations Committee today that such a step will not be taken unless the Administration enumerates, one by one, the items to be eliminated in the new bills.

It is learned that House leaders submitted to the executive branch of the Government, early in the present session, a statement showing how $50,000,000 could be saved by cutting vigorously public buildings, river and harbor, the navy building program, and other projects. The Administration is said to have regarded such cuts as likely to be unpopular with the country and with Congress.

Await President's Order.

Consequently, the would-be economists returned to the Capitol, slashed a few items here and there, and brought in bills following fairly closely the estimates submitted by the executive department. Now the deficit is said to be growing, and the "I told you so" House economists are busy.

It is authoritatively asserted that the appropriation budgets, as they have been passed in this session, will not be altered in the new session unless the White House directs the slicing and names the projects to be eliminated. The House leaders feel they would be over-turned were they to bring in an economy budget without White House backing.

EXPECT WOUNDED POLICEMAN TO LIVE

Unless Pneumonia Develops, Sergeant Lohman, Due to Physique, Will Recover.

Sgt. Harry E. Lohman, of the First precinct, who was shot twice in the right breast by Lewis Newman, a former member of the marine corps, whom he attempted to arrest as a suspect at a hold-up man and housebreaker early yesterday morning, spent a comfortable night, according to physicians at Emergency Hospital.

The wounded police officer will recover, the doctor says, unless pneumonia or some other complication develops.

Examination by the surgeons has proved that the two bullets fired into the body of the sergeant did not penetrate the chest cavity, and therefore did no injury to the lungs. The wound in the back, which is in the opinion of the doctors, which in a measure may retard the patient's recovery, is pneumonia.

Lohman's splendid physique will contribute in no small measure, the physicians say, in bringing about a quick recovery.

The condition of Newman, whose leg was broken in two places by two bullets as he attempted to escape after shooting Lohman, is believed to be serious, more serious than that of the police officer.

A charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill awaits Newman in event of his recovery.

Frank Mack and Elsie Griffith, the colored man and woman arrested with Newman, are being held on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

Woman Who Told of Poison Needle Missing

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Alleged employment of a poison needle in splitting away Mrs. Mary Laubenschlager, a pretty widow of thirty-five, lying at Union Hill, N. J., is being investigated by Police Chief Wallace.

During the last six months Mrs. Rohrs reported several attacks by men using a hypodermic needle. January 21, she was in the office of Chief Wallace with this complaint, saying she was in fear of her life. Since then she has not been seen.

A note was found that same day by John Crowley, a cousin, stating that Mrs. Rohrs had been suddenly called to Jersey City.

Mrs. Mary Laubenschlager, a sister-in-law, living in Jersey City, stated that Mrs. Rohrs had not been at her home. She requested that a general alarm be sent out.

"Hook" $10,000 in Bank While Teller Watches

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Revising the old wire hook trick, two bank breakers, scouted up a $10,000 package of bills from under the eyes of the teller of the Dime Savings Bank, Brooklyn, and made their escape before the money was counted.

The money was taken from the bank committed Thursday, but the facts did not become known until today.

Three men entered the bank at noon, and while one engaged the teller in conversation one of the other manipulated the hook.

Elevator Crushes Man's Leg at Paper Plant

Wells was running the elevator from the first to the second floor, and his right foot was caught between the floor of the elevator and the top of the door. He was taken to the Georgetown University Hospital.

Girl Quits Army Hospital to Come Here and Fight for Suffrage

Miss Constance Drexel Working With Congressional Union After Resigning as Nurse.

SAYS SHE CAN DO MORE GOOD

"So Hopeless, Continually Patching Up Men Only to Send Them Back to Front."

"Oh, it seemed so hopeless, continually patching up wounded men only to have them sent to the front to be shot to pieces again," said pretty Miss Constance Drexel, the latest addition to suffragists ranks here, who has recently returned from Deauville, France, where she was a nurse in a military hospital.

"After two months of it my entire system revolted, so I decided to come back to America and do something really worthwhile by helping the women here win the vote. This will at least prevent a similar condition ever existing here, and we may later be able to help the unfortunate women of Europe."

This was the reply given by the young, newly-converted suffragist, when asked why she gave up nursing in France and returned to America.

Has Lived Long in France.

Although born in Philadelphia, Miss Drexel has spent the most of her time in France, where she was educated and where she was living at the outbreak of hostilities.

She was a guest at the fashionable villa of Mrs. James C. Parish, Jr., of New York, when the first trainload of wounded French soldiers were brought there, and was among the first of the young women of the social set to volunteer as a nurse.

"No, I had no idea of becoming a nurse when I went to Deauville," said she, looking at her crossed arms into sparkling blue eyes, "but when the first trainload of wounded arrived they asked for our car to help take them to the hospital, and I went to the train, and—oh, it was awful!"

"When I saw those pitiful, suffering creatures as they were borne on stretchers, others leaning helplessly on the guards, and inexpressible agony written on each face, I could no longer go on dancing and be happy."

She paused for a second, and drew a deep breath.

Didn't Go Back to Villa.

"So I didn't go back to the villa, but remained in the machine and went with them to the hospital and did what I could to relieve their suffering."

"Oh, it was heartbreaking at first to be in the midst of so much suffering, to see those mangled forms on all sides, and to be able to do so little for them. I never thought I could stand it," said she with a shudder, "but I just couldn't leave them. The thought of their suffering back there, when they went out, unbearable, so I just stayed and worked."

"And there was plenty to do. They were all covered with dirt and in many cases the ragged clothing clung to their bodies, and there were few clean towels, and the wounds washed, and the men put to bed. It required more nerve than I ever thought I had, but when I realized the great suffering of the men and saw how bravely they bore it, I just kept on my feet and stuck to my post. They endured their suffering nobly."

Clerks See Themselves As Others See Them

"To see themselves as others see them," a number of employees of the Postoffice Department attended a private exhibition at Crandall's Theatre today of postoffice pictures taken for the Government exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The pictures were made under the direction of the officials of the department and there are few clerks of the post who are not shown in them at one place or another.

"Woman of Mystery" Held as Church Thief

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Mrs. Katharine Randolph Fitzhugh, known as "the woman of mystery" who is said to be related to the famous Fitzhugh family of Virginia, was arrested on suspicion of having stolen handbags from Fifth avenue churches.

She was convicted in October, 1913, of the theft from St. Bartholomew's church of a gold watch belonging to Miss Dorothy Fisk, daughter of Banker Philip Fisk, and a gold bracelet, the property of Irene Munser, an actress.

FEEL HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS, SICK?

CLEAN YOUR TORPID LIVER—DIME A BOX

Sick headache? Always trace them to lazy liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous, constipated matter, gases and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache.

lently, like dumb beasts, and though there were hundreds of wounded in the big room, scarcely a sigh or a groan was heard.

Good to See Gratitude.

"It was good to see the expression of gratitude which came over their faces after their wounds had been dressed and they had been given clean garments and to see them, as they continued, face lighting up again. The hospital was so much more comfortable than the rough military trains that they seemed to forget their wounds for the time being, and many of them slept in detail."

"As in most of the larger cities of northern France, the large Casino building at St. Austrebert has been converted into a military hospital, and hundreds of cots now occupy the big rooms back there, when they went out, unbearable, so I just stayed and worked."

"And there was plenty to do. They were all covered with dirt and in many cases the ragged clothing clung to their bodies, and there were few clean towels, and the wounds washed, and the men put to bed. It required more nerve than I ever thought I had, but when I realized the great suffering of the men and saw how bravely they bore it, I just kept on my feet and stuck to my post. ## Greek Liars Told Best Nature Fakes

Did You Ever See Elephant Cry to Music or Bee Carry Ballast in Wind?

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Paul Shorey, professor of Greek in the University of Chicago, has called to the attention of Theodore Roosevelt some of the ancient nature-faking. He spoke on "Nature Faking in Antiquity" at a luncheon of the Chicago Classical Club.

Here are some of the ancient lies exposed by Prof. Shorey:

A bear crawls into the eyes of the lion, making the latter afraid.

Herons are fond of oysters. So, swallowing shell and all, they let the oyster open in the warm recesses of the crop and then get the oyster.

A bear crawls into his hole on his back in order to leave no trail for the hunter.

Lucretius says that certain rays from the rooster's body bring the eyes of the lion, making the latter afraid.

"The proper way to catch oaks is to put the bait at the end of a hollow fishing rod and, when they are eating the bait, blow through the rod and suffocate them."

Vultures will hold their wings over the eyes of a bull and entice the latter over a precipice.

Elephants are affected to tears by music.

WANTS TIDAL BASIN AS BATHING BEACH

Senator Norris Urges $50,000 Appropriation to Better District Facilities.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, who is a strong advocate of more bathing facilities for the people in Washington, and especially for the boys, believes Congress should provide enough money to transform the Tidal Basin in Potomac Park into a public bathing beach, large enough to accommodate a large number of bathers.

Senator Norris, in speaking of his recent effort to get a $50,000 amendment added to the District bill to make this improvement, said:

"Tidal Basin is a pool of about 110 acres of water, four to eight feet deep, and of no particular use now except to put the boats in. It is a model location for public bathing, and though there is no other use under the sun to which it can be put, yet it is not used."

"Near Tidal Basin are the small concrete pools, not much larger than the pools in an ordinary Y. M. C. A. building, which are the only bathing places in the District of Columbia. These little pools are an crowded to one-tenth of the people that need the accommodations they ought to have, and thousands of persons who want to go in bathing in summer have no place to go."

"The pools are but a stone's throw from Tidal Basin, which today is useless, though we have spent several hundred thousand dollars in the last ten or fifteen years creating it. There is not another city in the United States that has any opportunity for a public bathing beach that has not provided for it by an expenditure of public funds."

Most Old People Are Constipated

The wear of years impairs the action of the bowels. With advancing age people are disposed to restricted activity and exercise, which is responsible for the constipated condition of most old folks. The digestive organs are more sensitive to the emanations made upon them and rebel more quickly.

A mild, effective remedy for constipation, and one that is especially suited to the needs of elderly people, women and children, is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.
